Hello,

If someone is receiving Medicare but they continue to work, the first $65 of their earned income is not counted, or disregarded. Only half of the remaining earned income is counted towards eligibility for MSP. However, if their spouse works and is not yet on Medicare, the total amount of their spouse's earned amount is considered for eligibility.

Subject: QMB, MSP income disregards?

Hi Laura,

We are trying to figure out if the Earned Income Disregards of the first $65 and 1/2 of the remainder are allowed when calculating eligibility for QMB, SLMB, and ALMB.

We have a client who is on Medicare as a disabled person but she works part time. She does not qualify for S05 due to excess assets.

Please advise.

Thanks

Maureen Carney
